R02. This is a short test of perceptiveness. Show item A. In the upper part of each page of the test you have a pattern with one part missing. You need to choose an image to fill in the missing part that fits the pattern in both the vertical and horizontal direction. Only one image is the correct one. In the first item, the image number 1 fits the pattern, but only in the vertical direction, while image number 4 fits in the horizontal direction, but not vertically. Please find the image which fits in both directions. If R has difficulties, provide a cue as to the right answer.

The right solution is image number 8 and this is the number that you need to write in the first box. Show R, where on the last page of the questionnaire is the appropriate place to write down the answer. Now do the next item by yourself. Show item B. The correct solution is image number 4 – please write this number in the second box.

The next items are increasingly difficult. However, it is not necessary that you solve all of them – it is important that you understand the problem and attempt to solve as many items as possible. You have five minutes to do that.

Hand R items 1–10. On a separate page write the time of the start of the test. Keep track of the time and note when five minutes have passed. Then write down the following:

(1) How many items R solved (regardless whether or not answers were correct) within 5 minutes (not counting items A and B). If R completed the test in less than 5 minutes or if (s)he wants to continue the test after the 5 minutes have passed, allow R to do so and write down this fact;

(2) After how many minutes did R return the test to the interviewer (regardless of how many items (s)he managed to solve).

After the completion of the test, the information described above should be reported in the questionnaire – below:

How many items R processed within the first 5 minutes (without tasks A and B)?

Items [77 – refused]

After how many minutes R returned the test to interviewer?

Minutes
